Concerning Polar Bears.

A polar bear would not have a chance is stalking seals if it were of a darker olor. The only black spot about it is he tip of its nose. The sailors who rst landed on the unexplored Arctic es stated that the bears used to tak m for seals, and begin to stalk then a considerable distance, lying down on their bellies and wriggling along in that position until they came to an ice hummock, when they would get up, peer over to see if the "seals" were alarmed, and wriggle on again. The "London Spectator," in an article on Arctic animals, gives the following: The sailors state that they could always see the black nose when the bear got near, but yowed that the bear put his paw over his muzzle to hide it. It is said that he is a gambler who traveled all over the State. While on one of his trips he went to Lima, where he became stranded. He partook heavily of morphine, it is claimed, and acted strangely. Smith visited a pawnbroker, and wanted to pawn the supposed 1804 dollar for $25. The pawnbroker knew he value of the 1804 dollar and became suspicious, and reported the matter to the police, who in turn reported to the United States authorities. The latter decided to arrest Smith, as they were
